— The history of the decline and fall of the Roman Empire; with notes of Milman, Guizot and W: Smith. N. Y. 1880. 6 v. O. 937.1 : 4

Note. "The period embraced extends from the middle of the second century of our era to the fall of Constantinople, in 1453. The author did not pursue a strict chronological order, but massed his materials and arranged them in accordance with their moral and political significance. The completed work, therefore, has somewhat the appearance of a succession of monographs, each one of which is perfect, or nearly perfect, in itself." It comprises the political and religious history of all the peoples and kingdoms more or less intimately connected with the roman world during this long and turbulent period.

SYNOPSIS OF CLASSIFICATION

AND

SUBJECT INDEX.

NOTE.

The system of classification in use in this library is mainly the one, devised by Mr. Melvil Dewey for the Amherst College library and described in his "Classification and Subject Index", published in 1875, and subsequently introduced, with slight modifications and amplifications, in the library of the Young Men's Association of Buffalo in 1878. The distinguishing feature of this scheme is the arrangement of a library, on the decimal basis, in nine great groups or classes, each group partitioned into nine divisions, and each division into nine sections, the whole being preceded by a group for books of a general character. The series of 999 classes thus formed, following each other in the usual numerical order, and in which each figure has a distinct meaning, the Sections being represented by units, the Divisions by tens, and the Groups by hundreds, is almost identical with the original scheme of Mr. Dewey. The only variation consists in a more or less complete rearrangement of the distribution of subjects in the divisions "Political Science", "Law", "Sermons", "Africa", and "North America", as well as changing a single section or its name here and there, and adding a division for "Libraries". In adopting the system for use, however, it was found desirable to further subdivide a large number of the original classes, by the addition of a fourth and occasionally a fifth figure. These subsections, including all of those already employed at Buffalo, but for which the author of the sytem is not responsible, have been added wherever it was considered expedient and in conformity with the general plan; and the figures denoting them have in all cases been treated as decimal fractions of the original class. All these changes and additions are in no way intended as an improvement or amendment of Mr. Dewey's system of classification, but simply as an attempt to adapt it to the particular needs of this library. Since the printing of this catalogue began, our modifications have been rendered unnecessary by a minute elaboration and partial reconstruction of the "Decimal Classification" by the author himself, published in 1885, and it is a matter of regret that the thus completed system was not available for use in this library, if for no other reason, for the manifest advantages arising from a uniformity of classification in a large number of libraries. As it is, the fact must be emphasized, that the class-numbers, as employed in this library, frequently have a different meaning from those of the Dewey Decimal Classification.

For a detailed description and explanation of the principles underlying this scheme of classification, the reader is referred to either of the publications mentioned above.
